BURNED TO DEATH

Miss Maggie McCabe Meets Tragic End Yesterday Afternoon

Maggie McCabe, aged 21, feeble-minded, residing with her mother in Third near Lexington street, was burned to death last evening between 5 and 6 o'clock.

The aged mother had left her daughter locked in the house while she went to a nearby grocery, and though absent only a short while the unfortunate girl caught fire—supposed from an open grate, and, before discovered by neighbors and aid could reach her, was burned to a crisp.

The distracted old mother was heart-broken on returning and learning the horrible fate of her daughter. It was a pathetic scene to witness the kind and loving parent's mental distress and anguish of heart.

Coroner Orr rendered a verdict of death from accidental burning.
The funeral will take place tomorrow. Interment in Washington Cemetery.

WE ARE ADVERTISED EVERYWHERE BY OUR BREAD

The Ledger's Washington Letter

Special Correspondence Public Ledger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7th, 1906.

Thoughts have been running through our mind recently how rich in historic lore, as well as in material things, is Mason county; and, at this distance of nearly 600 miles, our mind seems to focus on our native county, and to realize more than ever how much we should love it and how we should cherish and commemorate the lives of our great Pioneer heroes, our Statesmen, Historians and Poets. The status of Mason county is now fixed upon a solid and wealthy basis, and its future possibilities permit the fancy to outline what the local Captains of Industry should do to place Maysville and Mason county "foremost in the van where Progress leads the way!"

These things would help: A new and modern fire-proof Courthouse, of such architectural beauty and utility that every native and resident of Mason county could point to it with consistent pride as a monument to our progress and our wealth, and to our departed Patriots, Pioneer heroes, Statesmen, Jurists, Historians, Poets and Authors.

Are not the names and lives of Daniel Boone and Simon Kenton worthy of perpetuation in marble in Mason county's new Courthouse? Besides the statues of Boone and Kenton we would have to adorn the marble walls of our new Temple of Justice, life-sized paintings of the historians, Lewis and Richard H. Collins, Richard H. Stanton, William H. Wadsworth, E. C. Phister, John W. Showalter, Henry T. Stanton, General Albert Sidney Johnston, General William Nelson, Arthur Fox, Sr., and Arthur Fox, Jr., General Henry Lee, George Cox, James Barbour, Robert A. Cochran, Judge Whitaker and many others; not omitting the last and one of our county's greatest sons, Colonel W. W. Baldwin.

What a glorious gallery it would be, and what an inspiration it would prove to the youth of coming generations.

Also— A new High School Building, constructed on modern lines, with an auditorium seating 1,200, and with gymnasiums for the physical culture of both sexes. The old Convent Building and grounds purchased through from Second to Third streets, using all the land West of the Church of the Nativity, would give efficient room for playgrounds. Remodel the Convent Building and erect a beautiful Colonial addition on the East side—and there you are.

Did you say "talk is cheap, but it takes money to build Temples of Justice and Temples of Learning?" Well, you have got the price, and "there are no pockets in shrouds." Better see your wealth while in the flesh, as you'll be a long time dead.

Suggestions of Local Interest

THE MAN FROM MAYSVILLE.

Of the scores of Maysville and Mason county men who have climbed the heights of Fame and written their names in imperishable characters on the scroll of History, none are more worthy of honor than he who has as his everlasting monument the great Dome of the National Capitol at Washington—the Hon. Richard H. Stanton.

Representative R. H. Stanton, member of Congress from the Maysville District, in 1852, introduced in the House of Representatives a bill appropriating $1,000,000 to erect the present lofty, artistic and sublime tower, known as the Dome of the Capitol. This mighty Dome is the very poetry of inspired architecture, and is considered the most beautiful and imposing piece of work ever executed by the hand of man. The old Dome, destroyed by fire in 1851, was of wood, was always inadequate and was inharmonious with the physical outlines of the great structure of the Capitol itself and to the lofty ideals of the millions of proud patriots who would gaze upon the noble pile for generations to come.

The present Dome typifies sublime strength and magnificent unity.

Although the Dome weighs over 8,000,000 pounds, yet it seems to float and poise like a cloud above the earth, and with Freedom's Banners waving from this stupendous eminence of National grandeur and greatness, and crowned by the Goddess of Liberty, it is indeed a sight to thrill and to inspire the souls of all patriotic Americans.

Getting down from the sublime to the ridiculous, to brass tacks, as it were, the Dome weighs 8,909,200 pounds; and is composed of two iron shells, one within the other, for the double purpose of strength and expansion and contraction. It is 135 feet 5 inches in diameter and cost $1,047,291.89. Its 13 columns forming the lantern above the Dome stand for the 13 original states; and the 36 columns surrounding and forming the support of the Dome itself stand for the 36 states composing the Union at that time. It was not finished until 1865. It is 307 feet 6 inches from the ground on the West side of the Capitol to the liberty cap on the head of the Goddess of Liberty.

Representative Stanton not only introduced the bill to erect the Dome of the Capitol, but he also introduced the measure in the House which gave the name of Washington to the present state of Washington.

Late in the year 1852 there was a bill before Congress for the creation of a territory that should bear the name of Columbia, after the great river of the West. During the debate on the measure Representative Stanton of Kentucky arose and said:

"Mr. Speaker, I have often wished that there should be created out of our broad domain a territory that should some day develop into a great state that should do honor to the Father of our Country. I move you, sir, that the name Columbia be stricken from this bill and that the name of Washington be substituted in its place."

The motion was promptly approved, and thus by a Mason county man was the name of Washington bestowed upon a great Commonwealth in the Northwestern corner of our Republic.

Judge Stanton was not only a wise and patriotic statesman, but he was also an able and eminent lawyer and jurist, deeply learned in and devoted to his profession and the author of numerous and valuable treatises on legal subjects. He was an ornament to his home county whom all should delight to honor; and better than all, he was the father of the immortal author of "The Mowleyless Man."—Henry T. Stanton.

Daniel Boone, though a native of Pennsylvania, was one of the original pioneers of Maysville, then known as Limestone. It was at Limestone about the year 1783, that the settlers, at the suggestion of Boone, held the first council of war with the Indian Chiefs of Ohio, and in a grove below Limestone creek the celebrated pow-wow was held during the month of June. There was a great gathering of the white pioneers of Kentucky and the great Indian Chiefs. Here the treaty was formed by which prisoners should be exempted from torture and the scalping knife, and exchanged as in the civil war. The Indians agreed, with one consent, that in grateful commemoration of the treaty of Limestone, that if any captive should thereafter be taken by them from "the Dark and Bloody Ground," as Kentucky was then called, that captives should be treated with every possible degree of lenity, and it is worthy of record that a white man was subsequently captured by the Indians and that the latter, with the most scrupulous fidelity, fulfilled the pledges made at the treaty, and the man was later returned to his home safe and sound.

Daniel Boone was illiterate, but in many respects he was the equal of George Washington, and possessed in an eminent degree all of Washington's virtues. He was six feet tall, was quiet, brave and fearless and was the soul of honor. In truth, Boone was a second Cincinnatus of the West. Washington was the Father of our Country; Boone was the Father and Founder of Kentucky, and for a whole year was the solitary white person to dwell alone in this vast domain.

of Nature, surrounded by thousands of Red Men and millions of wild animals.

"Under the forms of law" history is indebted to the Kentucky Legislature for divesting (plain English, robbing) Boone of his vast landed interest in the Transylvania Company; and per force, he was driven, like the Indian whom he had himself driven from Kentucky, farther West to Missouri, where in 1820 he died an alien from his chosen home, but an honored citizen in a grateful state among relatives and friends and upon his own estate of 850 acres granted him by act of Congress.

It is noted as a curious fact that Colonel Boone, in passing through his wonderful career of hardships and miraculous adventures, had been a subject of George II., George III., a citizen of the United States, of the domain of the Transylvania Company in Kentucky, an adopted son of a great Shawnee Indian Chief and spoke their language, a subject of Charles IV. of Spain, and a subject of the great Napoleon.

All Boone ever got for his work in Kentucky was a snivelling and verbose set of "resolutions" from a grateful(?) Legislature which memorialized Congress in his behalf instead of doing the honorable restitution business itself.

[It seems to us that one Colonel Albert E. Boone was treated about the same as his illustrious ancestor, and got it in the neck pretty badly in this same Kentucky. Kentucky appears to have it in for all the Boones.]

Simon Kenton was another charter member of the Maysville Men. He was a Virginian, but settled in Mason county and owned the present site of the town of Washington and helped settle Maysville. Kenton was a very handsome man and was more of a scholar than Daniel Boone, his friend and associate.

Simon Kenton died and was buried in Ohio in 1836. Why not have his remains reburied in Kentucky beside his comrade, Boone, in the Frankfort Cemetery.

Mason county's annals are rich in the historical adventures of these brave and heroic old pioneers, and volumes could be written of their thrilling and blood-curdling encounters with the Redmen for twenty miles along the Ohio river from Maysville to Dover and Augusta.

Captain John May, after whom Maysville was named, was killed by the Indians the very year that Limestone was changed to Maysville.

George Mason, after whom Mason county was named, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and a prominent figure in the Revolutionary period. His estate, Gunston Hall, is still intact on the Potomac river twenty-two miles below Washington. It is in Fairfax county, Va., and consists of 615 acres and has large orchards containing 10,000 fruit trees. Gunston Hall was built by George Mason in 1755 and was named after his English ancestor. It is of the old colonial type of architecture and is built of brick brought over from Scotland, which are twice as large as the modern brick.

The mansion is 80 feet long by 40 wide, and the main entrance is on the North side and is marked by a large, square portico built of brick and stone and having four heavy Doric pillars. There is a smaller portico facing the Potomac. The design of the whole is pure colonial, and is much admired by students of architecture.

Speaking of the Indian and his times, it appears to us that the noble Redman was and is a much abused individual. In our gentle, Christian, missionary-evangelical way we have corrupted and plundered him and all but annihilated and exterminated him, until now he is nearly at the last jumping-off place into the Pacific Ocean.

Who owned and occupied these 3,000,000 square miles, nearly 2,000,000,000 acres, of magnificent forest and prairie domain but the American Indian, who saw it first and possessed it first?

A sarcastic writer well says that "when the Pilgrim Fathers first landed at Plymouth Rock they fell on their knees and then they fell on the Aborigines."

Talk about the conquests of Cortez and Pizarro and Morgan the Buccaneer, the English settlers have murdered and starved a million or more of American Indians and robbed them of the biggest and richest piece of real estate on earth.

But as it was all done "under the forms of law" it ought to be pretty well understood down in Old Kentucky where they take an especial pride in performing things "under the forms of law."

Theodore Roosevelt, who went down a few points when he made that Muck Rake speech, has gone up a hundred-to-one-shot since he buried the Garfield report plump into the face of the Standard Oil crowd. The corporation lawyers in the United States Senate are astounded by the report and by the Big Stick diplomacy displayed by the pluckiest man on earth who resides in the White House. Theodore Roosevelt is the wisest, the most fearless and the most tactful and resourceful President we ever had. He is a composite of Washington, Lincoln, Jackson and McKimley, and with him in the White House the destiny of our country is safe. He does things and does them right, and does them in the interest of the whole people.

Last Friday formal debate on the Railroad Rate Bill was closed and the bill and all its amendments and amendments to amendments, etc., etc., were laid before the Senate by Mr. Tillman. Then the music began. But it was a cold day for the corporation lawyers. Three amendments presented by an able Senator on the side of the railroads were snuffed out of eight in short order. During the fun Senator Tillman and Senator Spooner almost had a fight. Spooner was livid with rage and bile and yelled at the former that if he wanted a scrap he could get it. Tillman ordered Spooner to sit down, which he declined to do. Tillman was urging the prerogatives of the Vice-President in ordering him to take his seat. Audhow do you think it all ended? Why in 10 minutes after the rumpus Tillman and Spooner had buried the hatchet and were laughing and joking over it. The trouble is with Tillman he speaks too plain and gets too near the facts and the truth to suit his colleagues in the Senate. He may be rough and write with his left hand and blind in his left eye, but all the same he is honest, genial and one of the popular Senators in Washington. The bit dog howls, and Ben hits 'em every pop.

This rate bill inquiry, after the Tariff question, is the most drastic and far-reaching piece of legislation ever placed before Congress. There is no telling what a vast amount of commercial evil it may remedy. It will cover and correct all interstate traffic abuses, will regulate all transportation matters on railway and waterways, including private car lines, and under the Lodge amendment it will wipe out the oil monopoly and bring cheaper prices through free competition and will end the rebate evil in its entirety.

The bill is now sure to pass the Senate in acceptable shape by the first of next week, and maybe sooner. Even if the measure has to go through the House, if satisfactory to the President and Speaker Cannon it can easily pass that body again.

Senators and Congressmen are getting on to the fact that the people, without regard to politics, are behind the President in his desire and determination that the Trusts, combines and corporations must obey the laws of the land and give the public a square deal, and do it now. The present moment is almost a crisis in our country's history, and the President and all porsous who look at things from this view point, know what's coming if Congress fails in its patriotic duty.

We learn from THE LEDGER with heartfelt sorrow and regret that Colonel W. W. Baldwin has joined the mighty throng in the Republic of the Dead. Colonel Baldwin was one of the greatest, the broadest-minded and one of the most prominent Kentuckians of recent years. His death to Maysville and Mason county is indeed a serious and irreparable loss. Such giants, physically and intellectually, do not often appear in the activities of human existence. Now that he has crossed the Dark River and rests beneath the beautiful Bluegrass of his native county, that he loved so well, we can all declare that in many particulars he was one of the strongest and greatest men Kentucky ever produced.

Is it not strange that men have to die in order that we may appreciate them at their true value?

So it will be with you, Editor Davis. Not till you sleep the sleep that knows no waking will your fellow-citizens and friends realize your worth and the great work and efforts you have put forth for your home city and county and your loyalty and love of both at all times and at all seasons.

Better living one small bouquet
Than a bushel of roses when we're dead.

Speaker Cannon, the jolly old statesman who presides over the House of Representatives and rules the roost like a Czar when he is so disposed, celebrated his 70th birthday Monday. He was given a banquet at the Arlington. He is an inveterate smoker and joker, and declares that he goes to Church regularly once a year. He is a foxy old statesman, and he and Roosevelt have a diplomatic understanding that hastens Congressional matters very effectively.

In Senator LaFollette's three days speech on the rate bill he produced the figures to prove how the railroad watered their stock for stock-jobbing purposes. He declares that the roads of the United States are bonded at $63,000 per mile and are assessed at only $21,000 per mile; and that while the owners of the roads put a value of $13,000,000,000 on the entire railway mileage of the country, their real value is less than $7,000,000,000. He further says the latter figures can be further reduced by subtracting about $2,000,000,000 in public lands, free rights of way and terminal facilities donated to the roads.

LaFollette's was the longest speech delivered in the Senate this session, and he is entirely conversant with the subject, his remarks were so true and pertinent that no one has ventured to controvert any of his statements.

As we are encroaching upon your limited space we will "ring off" rather than go to the waste-basket. More anon. A. F. C.

River News

Gage marks 17.5 and rising.
The river is very low in the Pittsburgh district.

The Henry M. Stanley is due down today from points above.

The Keystone State will be up tonight for Pittsburgh and the Greenwood for Pomeroy.

The Coal City passed up with a tow of empties for the mines in the Pittsburgh District.

Many of the Kanawha river towboats are laid up at headwaters for the want of material to handle.

The little steamer Cando, which has been running in the Kentucky river trade, has been transferred by the Cando Company to a trade on the Big Sandy river, out of Catlettsburg.

Pilot Peter Holloway of Pt. Pleasant stood Pilot James Rowley's watch on the Courier, in the Maysville-Cincinnati trade, while the latter made the trip to Pittsburgh and return on the Goldenrod.

The towboat W. W. O'Neil is on her way to Pittsburgh with 61 empty barges. The tow is 262 feet wide and 1,010 feet long. This beats the Sprague's record trip by ten barges, and is the largest ever handled by a towboat.

The rises along the river from Wheeling are slight and that in the Kanawha will be of no consequence. Coal mine operators do not hope to get out much coal on this rise. The operators of the packets are jubilant over the outlook and look for an immense business as long as the water holds out. The packets have an advantage over the towboats and the coal craft, as they do not draw as much water as the other boats.

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Maysville Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Maysville, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Maysville kidney sufferers.

A. W. McClanahan, of A. W. & B. P. McClanahan, grocers, at 121 Second street, Maysville, Ky., says:

"I can endorse Doan's Kidney Pills more heartily today than I did five years ago when I told the Maysville people that the medicine had cured me of severe kidney trouble and backache that had bothered me more or less for twenty years and seemed to be growing worse and worse all the time. I repeat that I can more confidently recommend Doan's Kidney Pills today than I did in that testimonial because my cure has been permanent and I have had no kidney trouble for nearly five years. As proof that I am a firm believer in Doan's Kidney Pills I will be only too pleased to reiterate the above to anyone who may inquire. I got the remedy at J. Jas. Wood & Son's Drugstore."
